PLANS FOR NEW ESOPUS CREEK BRIDGE APPROVED BY STATE DEPARTMENT

Proposed Structure of Steel With Concrete Flooring—Approximate Cost $30,000—To Meet With Town Board of Ulster—Seeks More Drastic Parking Ordinance—Other Matters.

Plans for a steel bridge with concrete flooring to replace the present structure over the Esopus creek in Ulster county have been prepared by James F. Loughran, county superintendent of highways, and approved by the state department of public works, bureau of highways. The estimated cost of the new bridge is about $30,000, of which the city of Kingston pays half and the town of Ulster half.

The plans were brought to the attention of the board of public works at the regular monthly meeting Thursday evening at the city hall by Superintendent Henry Darrow, and were approved by the board.

The proposed new bridge is four feet wider than the present bridge, which has been condemned by the state as unsafe for traffic.

After talking the matter over the board decided to invite the town board of Ulster to meet with them and talk over the matter thoroughly and see what action the town of Ulster was ready to take. County Superintendent Loughran will also be invited to be present at the session, which will be held as soon as convenient.

Superintendent Darrow was authorized by the board to make an inquiry for a temporary road and bridge to be used by traffic while the new bridge is under construction.

Snow Removal Cost $6,400.

Up to Thursday it has cost the city $6,400 for snow removal this winter. The snows forecast by weather prophets for March hold off until winter the snow bill will be considerably lighter than last winter, when it was over $30,000.

Superintendent Darrow reported that he had laid off all extra men and trucks and was using only the city trucks to remove what snow was left.

Millard's Snow Remover.

John Millard was present at the meeting to talk over with the board his combined snowplow, street sweeper and scraper and thirty horsepower machine that can be used for almost any street work purpose, and which he is anxious to sell to the city.

During the recent heavy storm Mr. Millard's little machine did considerable work for the city opening up the streets around the Kingston City and Benedictine Hospitals, the city hall, Wall and Fair streets, and other sections.

The matter of purchasing the machine, which costs less than $2,000, will be taken up later when a full board is present. There were two absentees that evening, Commissioner John Hillebrand, who has a heavy cold, and Dr. Chandler, who is in Europe.

Moore Street Petition.

Moore street residents petitioned the board to construct a sewer in that street. The petition was referred to the street committee and superintendent to report back.

More Drastic Ordinance.

Chief of Police Wood sent in a communication stating he had ordered his men to enforce the all-night parking ordinance, and suggested that as the present ordinance, which was adopted during the administration of Mayor William Lounsbury, was obsolete, it should be replaced by a more drastic ordinance. The chief's communication was referred to the laws and rules committee and corporation counsel to take up the matter of a more drastic parking ordinance.

To Write Electric Co.

Secretary Winchell was directed to write President Beal of the Electric Company, to ascertain if the city was to be given a demonstration of the proposed new 600 candlepower lights. At a recent meeting with the board and President Beal the matter was talked over and the Electric Company said they would arrange a demonstration if possible. Several routine matters were discussed and the board then adjourned.

Firemen Held Annual Session

Andrew J. Murphy was re-elected president of the Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association at the annual meeting held at the city hall Thursday evening. The other officers, who were re-elected, were: First vice-president, E. F. Moran; second vice-president, Edward C. Geschwinder; recording secretary, L. E. Dunne; financial secretary, Francis Cashin. The association elected George Schick as delegate to the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association. The following board of directors were re-elected: William Campbell, John Burger, Francis J. Wynne, Chauncey Lane and William Pratt. It was decided at the session to hold a smoker in the near future at which time speakers would be present to discuss firemanic problems and questions of interest to volunteer firemen.

Palmer Denies He's Implicated

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 29.—A. Mitchell Palmer, attorney general in the Wilson administration, was put on the grill today before the senate public lands committee, concerning his persistent efforts to block the examination of E. B. McLean, wealthy publisher, by the committee.

Palmer, who acted as McLean's attorney, was subjected to a vigorous examination by various senators on the committee, as to the "wires pulled" to prevent the committee from examining McLean.

Palmer denied that he was a law partner of Colonel J. W. Zevely, an associate of Harry F. Sinclair, although in the McLean telegrams made public by the committee yesterday, reference was made to a partnership existing between the two. He similarly denied he was ever employed by Sinclair or by ex-Secretary of the Interior Fall.

The former attorney general gave his testimony under oath, being sworn by Senator Lenroot, chairman of the committee.

He said he had been a friend of McLean's for some years and recently was employed as counsel for the publisher by John Major, McLean's confidential representative in Washington. How Major got the idea he was a law partner of Colonel Zevely, Palmer did not know, but he said he surmised it was because Zevely remarked to Major that he had been talking the oil scandal over with Palmer.

Palmer said on December 23 Zevely called to see him and "during the course of the conversation he asked me either what I thought or what I knew about the oil investigation. I told him I had never heard of it, that I had been out of the country for four months and out of the city for six months and didn't really know the investigation was going on."

Zevely asked Palmer, the witness said, if he thought Sinclair and Fall could be compelled to testify.

"I merely gave him my curbstone opinion," Palmer said, "that a witness could not be made to testify concerning any matter in the jurisdiction of the congress."

Palmer denied he had advised McLean he would not be called to testify.

Dill read a wire from Major to McLean, referring to "Palmer and his law partner, Zevely," saying "Palmer in the morning would look out for the interests of the man at Wardman Park Hotel (Fall)."

"Did you see Fall?"

"I haven't seen him for several years," Palmer replied.

Palmer said he had not discussed with McLean about "getting Whitney (Harry Payne Whitney) excused from testifying."

"Did you know that Zevely was acting for McLean?"

"I did not."

"Did you and he ever prepare together any statement for the committee?"

"No."

"Did you ever represent anyone else in the investigation?"

"I never represented anyone else in any way, shape or form except this simple thing that at McLean's request I acted for him in the absence of his attorney, Wilton Lamber."

"Do you represent Doherty?"

"Oh, no."

"Doherty has so many attorneys I thought it fair to ask you that question."

Palmer vigorously denied that he had even approached Senator Underwood, Democrat, Alabama, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination to intercede in McLean's behalf.

Palmer also was emphatic in repudiating Major's statement to McLean that he "had other people working on Walsh."

"I did get the impression that Senator Walsh had not made up his mind to call McLean but I repeat I did not have anyone to go to Senator Walsh for me on McLean's behalf," Palmer said.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

WAS BURNED IN 1901.

In reply to several inquiries made of The Freeman as to the date when the Academy of Music was destroyed by fire, it was June 11, 1901, according to the record in the "Duty Book," which was kept up for years by Wiltwyck House Company. The Academy of Music was owned by Henry W. Ois and was situated on East O'Reilly street and Sanson avenue, one block from Broadway, and was for some time a popular amusement place where dances, roller skating and political meetings were held, also dramatic entertainments. The late Enoch Carter and his son, Charles Carter, were the managers. It was a large frame structure and the masquerade ball of the Rondout Social Mannerer were annual events that were very largely attended.

Trolley Company is Entitled to Fair Return, Says Counsel

Kingston Point Park Remains Valuable; Right to Keep Idle Power Plant; Corporation Counsel Differs From Other Officials on Abandonment.

The brief of Howard Chipp, counsel for the Kingston Consolidated Railroad in the matter of the company's petition for an increased fare, filed with the public service commission at Albany is given below. All papers and arguments are now in and a decision is expected at any time.

The brief, which is dated February 27, reads:

I have given careful consideration to the memorandum of the learned corporation counsel of the city of Kingston and find but little therein requiring extended comment. I would first call attention to what the corporation counsel terms a "brief history." The brief history given is not a fair statement, and the actual facts in this regard may be found in the first three paragraphs of the petition in this matter, to which the attention of the commission is requested for a full and authentic history of the petitioning railroad. We dispute the assertion that it is commonly understood that the Colonial Railroad was built with the idea that the Kingston city management would stifle competition by purchasing it. As a matter of fact the building of the Colonial Railroad arose out of jealousies between the two ends of the city, and the feeling prevailing in upper Kingston against what was considered to be a dominant regime existing in the Rondout portion of the city. Again the statement that the Kingston City road has always been a paying investment with the five cent fare is not supported by the facts. It is true that it was a paying investment at the time it was acquired by the Colonial Road, and for some years afterwards, but that was before the increased cost of operation, and what is more important, before the use of the automobile which has grown so general that it is estimated that there is an automobile to every seven inhabitants.

Another statement that "these two roads were bought out by the present Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company," is wrong. The Colonial Railroad Company acquired by consolidation the Kingston City Company and thereafter changed the name of the Colonial to "The Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company," all of which will appear by the petition herein. The learned counsel quotes a dictum of Judge Vann that "The Public Service Commission was not created for the convenience of corporations, but for the protection of the public." The dictum thus quoted, aside from its context, must be subject to the proviso with which Captain Jack Bunsby prefaced his opinion given to Captain Cuttle, to wit: "The bearings of this observation lies in the application on it," and it should be conditioned with the further consideration that the public will be neither protected nor its interests subserved by a street railway which barely pays the cost of operation, with little or nothing to the investors in the property. Furthermore, it must be borne in mind that this railroad is not a recent creation, but the consolidation took place some twenty-three years ago, and that it is not a theory, but a condition which is before the commission.

The city's memorandum seems to have an implication that some advantage was taken of it in procuring passage in June, 1918 of the ordinance varying the five cent fare and submitting the matter to the Public Service Commission for a just and reasonable fixation of the rate. This is not true. There was no concealment at the time, and the fact was well understood that the then rate of five cents was insufficient and that a higher rate should be granted.

So also the statement that a very small sum had been invested in the "non paying road" is not true. A very large sum indeed was invested in the building of the Colonial road and at the time of the consolidation and acquisition by it of the Kingston City railroad the then owners of the Colonial road paid nearly the sum of one half million dollars for the Kingston City road.

The assertion that Mr. Tebow testified that he had bought some of the stock at five dollars a share, however, I do not find in the minutes but I remember some such statement. He referred to a purchase of the common stock of the Consolidated road, and not to any purchase of the stock in the Colonial. In other words, he did not state that he had bought stock in the "non paying road" at five dollars a share, but stock in the combined roads at that sum.

II. Criticism is made also of the amount of the invested capital testified to it would be sufficient to say that such criticism is somewhat belated, since this commission has fixed the amount and has reaffirmed it in various orders made since.

If any change is to be made in the appraisal the amount should be increased as the basis of the present appraisal is the cost of reproduction at the rates prevailing at the time, less depreciation, while the true rule applicable is that the basis should be present cost of reproduction less depreciation. People vs. State Tax Commission, 206 A. D. 558; Third Dept. Nov. 1923.

Official Series No. 1199. While the decision cited was in a tax case, the rule established is equally applicable here. The testimony shows that cost of reproduction owing to higher prices prevailing since the war, etc., has largely increased and that this is so is a matter of common knowledge. Under the testimony and by reason of the facts of which the Commission may take judicial notice, the physical valuation upon which the former orders of the commission are based, should be increased at least two hundred thousand dollars.

It is said that the Park property is not necessary for the successful operation of the railroad and is rated too high. When the Kingston City Railroad adopted electricity as a mode of power, the Kingston Point Park was acquired as a feeder to its revenues and for many years proved to be a valuable, if not the most valuable of its assets. The line of the Ulster & Delaware Railroad was extended to the park; a station was erected, and the day boats changed their landing from Rhinecliff to the Park. The park itself, laid out by a landscape gardener, and income at once a great resort for Kingston people, especially during the summer months, and thousands of people were carried thither and back by the open cars of the Company. Before the acquisition of the Kingston City road by the Colonial, the latter had no access to the park, and the ownership of this pleasure resort was a great inducement to the acquisition of the Kingston City road, and for many years, and until the trolley was displaced by the automobile, it was a source of large revenue to the petitioner herein, and it is still, although the revenues are smaller, paying its way, and is a valuable asset.

Criticism is also made of the valuation placed upon the power plant. The fact that the railroad company finds it more economical to use its plant is immaterial. It is justified in keeping the plant, since at any time it may become more economical to furnish its own power, and in any event, it is entitled to carry it on its books at the appraisal value, until it is sold, or otherwise disposed of.

The suggestion that the operation is wasteful is met by the uncontradicted testimony of Mr. Clark, certainly a competent witness, to the effect that the Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company is one of the best conducted and most economically operated railroads in the state. Such testimony is corroborated by the statistics of the railroad, and the figures of the cost of its operation on file with the commission.

III. The copious quotations from opinions in decided cases in the city's brief do not militate in any way against the position of the petitioner here. Indeed, if read in connection with the context and their application to the facts concerning which they were written, they will be found generally to sustain the views upon which petitioner's application here is based.

IV. In closing his brief counsel for the city says "The city's attitude toward abandonment of any part of the company's system is not a factor in the solution of the problem before the commission." He then cites the railroad law in respect of the proceedings required to be taken in such case a separate proceeding must be taken, and that the commission is without power to order an abandonment in this proceeding.

This is simply reinstating what the counsel for the railroad has insisted upon during the hearing whenever the suggestion for abandonment came up, and we therefore have no quarrel with this contention, but if the brief of the learned corporation counsel may be supposed to convey an implication that an application for abandonment of any part of the road would receive favorable consideration by the city, it must be taken simply as a personal opinion, for the attitude of the city on such a proceeding has been forestalled by the uncompromising resolution passed by the common council stating its present, and presumably future, opposition to the abandonment of any part of the road, and which resolution has been reaffirmed by the approval of the mayor, and by instructions given to the corporation counsel in conformity therewith. The position of the corporation counsel would seem to be that the difficulty of the railroad lies in the need of less cost of operating unprofitable parts and the remedy would be an abandonment of such unprofitable portions—a singular suggestion in view of the city's attitude evinced by its official action and instructions to its counsel. The position of the city is in effect: "We oppose, and will oppose, and application to abandon any portion of the road, and we likewise oppose any increase of fare, quite regardless of whether it is needed or

Highest Surtax Rate 37 1/2%

Republicans in House and Their Insurgent Brethren Reach Agreement Acceptable to Administration.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 29.—Rejection of the income tax rates written into the tax reduction bill by the Democrats and the substitution of compromise rates which are acceptable to the administration was agreed upon today after a series of conferences between the regular and insurgent Republicans.

Announcement of the compromise agreement was made shortly before the House convened by Representative John M. Nelson of Wisconsin, leader of the insurgents.

The maximum surtax rate under the compromise will be 37 1/2 per cent on incomes of $200,000 and over, instead of the 44 per cent maximum written into the bill under the Garner plan. (The original Mellon plan provided for a maximum surtax of 25 per cent.)

The normal tax rates agreed upon according to Nelson, are two per cent up to $4,000; 5 per cent from $4,000 to $8,000, and six per cent from $8,000 upward.

New Enforcement Act Drafted

District Attorneys' Bill Has Search and Seizure Clause and They Say Present Situation Invites Federal Government to Usurp State Powers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Feb. 29.—Prohibition forged to the front today as one of the biggest issues in the 1924 session of the state legislature.

A state-wide enforcement bill, drafted by a committee of the district attorneys' association, was transmitted to the presiding officers of the senate and assembly.

It provides for the enactment of a state-wide dry enforcement law with "teeth."

The bill was drafted by a subcommittee of the district attorneys' association. It closely follows the old Mulligan-Gage law which was repealed during the closing hours of last year's session, except that double jeopardy is eliminated. It provides for search and seizure without a warrant.

"A prohibition law without a search and seizure clause would be a joke," declared District Attorney Guy Moore of Buffalo, chairman of the committee which drafted the bill.

Speaker Machold, Republican leader of the assembly, is opposed to the search and seizure provision, but it is believed the assembly will pass the bill.

The committee which drafted the bill made it plain that its action was not the result of a recent letter from Speaker Machold, asking that such a measure be drafted, but because of a resolution adopted by the district attorneys' association at a meeting here last week.

"We urge the reenactment of a state prohibition enforcement law for the following reason," said a statement issued by the district attorneys:

"1. Since the repeal of the Mulligan-Gage law conditions of law enforcement have grown steadily worse.

"2. Without a state enforcement act, state and local officers are practically powerless to enforce the national law.

"3. The number of federal agents, attorneys and courts is wholly inadequate for effective law enforcement."

Another dry law enforcement bill, which follows out the ideas of Speaker Machold has been introduced in the upper house by Senator John R. Knight, Republican. The bill eliminates both the double jeopardy and the search and seizure. It is not believed the Democratic senate will consider the Knight bill until after the assembly has acted on an enforcement measure.

The district attorneys, in their memorandum, called attention to the fact that there are only four United States district courts and four United States attorneys, and only 200 federal agents. Without a state law permitting state police officials and state courts to handle prohibition cases they claim the United States courts would be congested.

not." This certainly amply justifies the characterization of the city's attitude as that of a "dog in the manger" by the learned commissioner during the hearing.

Facts and figures are before the Public Service Commission, which no attempt has been made to controvert, from which the inevitable conclusion arises that the present rate of fare is insufficient to constitute a fair and reasonable return on the capital invested, and that the application of the present rate to the ten cents as prayed for, or at least by such an amount as will produce a just and reasonable return to the company.

TRAVER ANSWERS "LOOSE TALK" ON PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT BY COUNTY AND TOWN OFFICIALS

Letter to Village Board of Saugerties Points Out Duty of Officials and Calls Attention to Fact That Public Does Not Get "Something for Nothing" in Law Enforcement or Anything Else.

In its account of a meeting in the interests of law enforcement and improvement of moral conditions in Saugerties, on Monday evening, The Saugerties Post stated that the village officials contended they were powerless to act in the matter and to support their position a letter from the district attorney was read, the substance of which stated that no provision had been made by the board of supervisors to carry on the work of enforcing the Volstead law in the county.

The attention of District Attorney Traver was called to the matter by a Freeman reporter, and Mr. Traver said that at the request of one of the members of the board of trustees of the village of Saugerties, he had written a letter to such board setting forth the law and pointing out the fact that enforcement of any law can be had only if the people are willing to pay for it. He consented to supply The Freeman with a copy of his letter, in which no reference had been made to the board of supervisors, and The Freeman herewith publishes his letter, as follows:

February 25, 1924.
President of the Board of Trustees of the Village of Saugerties, Saugerties, N. Y.
Dear Sir:

One of the members of your honorable board has requested that I submit, for your consideration, a statement as to my views concerning the present situation relative to the enforcement of the Federal Prohibition Act and as to any duties or obligations which may be properly and lawfully performed by you thereunder. This is rather a large order, but I shall endeavor to fill it as best I can.

In dealing with these questions it is essential that we bear in mind the fact that ours is a dual or double form of government; that our Legislature at Albany enacts state laws and that the Congress at Washington establishes laws known as Federal laws, for the nation at large, and that we, as citizens of both state and nation owe a duty of obedience to all these laws.

The Federal Prohibition Act is a Federal law, enacted by the Congress and not by the state of New York, and therefore it is primarily the duty of the United States officers to enforce that law. I don't know what you may think about the manner in which these Federal officers have enforced this law in this part of the state, but in my opinion it has been a farce. In fact, amazing as it may seem, the State Prohibition Director, the head of the United States Prohibition Department in this state, has repeatedly made the statement, in substance, that Congress never intended to enforce the Prohibition law, except in certain localities, like parts of entry such as the city of New York. As I read the law, it applies to the whole territory of the United States and it is the duty of the United States authorities to enforce it everywhere. My information leads me to believe that, even in the Port of New York, the United States Prohibition Department has fallen down sadly, and that about ninety-five per cent of the liquor heretofore seized while being imported into that port has been seized, not by the Prohibition Department, but by Philip Elting, Collector of the Port of New York, under the Smuggling Act. Mr. Elting gets no credit for this good work because he does not talk about it. He simply "saves wood" and leaves the talking to be done by the Prohibition Department and I doubt if anybody can claim that this department has failed to embrace all its opportunities so far as that sort of "enforcement" is concerned.

The United States attorney at New York, I am informed, excuses failures to properly enforce this law upon the ground that the United States government has not provided sufficient funds nor the necessary number of United States judges. If this be true, why don't they get more money and more judges? It must be assumed that Congress intended to enforce this law or it would not have been enacted and therefore it should be possible to obtain sufficient appropriations from Congress to provide the necessary judges, etc. In other words, if the people in this country want this law enforced they must see that the necessary funds are provided. They must pay the cost. They cannot get "something for nothing" in law enforcement any more than in business or any other line of activity.

To sum it all up—if the people of this country want the Prohibition Law enforced they must do just two things, to wit: Provide the necessary funds and procure the services of competent officials.

First: When I speak of providing the necessary funds, I mean that it costs money to preserve evidence in these cases. It costs money to analyze liquor, it costs money to execute warrants, it costs money to transport prisoners and it costs money to provide judges and conduct courts. Second: When I refer to competent officials, I do not mean reformers or uplifters (either paid or unpaid) or temperance cranks, or any other sort of cranks, nor do I refer to mere talking machines. What is needed is broad minded, hard headed officials. Men who expend their energies in work, not talk. Men who perform their duties regardless of consequences and regardless of all hue and cry upon the part of the wets or dries. Men who in the performance of their duties have regard only for the requirements of their oaths of office.

With sufficient funds and the right sort of officials, the Federal Prohibition Law can be enforced. Otherwise, not.

Now, as to any obligations imposed upon the village of Saugerties under and by virtue of the Federal Prohibition Act, I say to you that, in my opinion, it is the duty of every county and municipality within this state to do its best to assist in the enforcement of this law and it is the duty of every prosecuting officer and peace officer in the state of New York to render such assistance as he can. However, unless the necessary funds are provided, for the payment of actual expenses, either by taxation or otherwise, little can be accomplished. In other words, to state my own case, while I am very willing to render any service I can personally, yet I do not feel called upon to go down into my own pocket and dig up money with which to pay the expenses of either injunction proceedings or criminal prosecutions, under this law.

In my opinion any peace officer of this state has a right to make arrests for violations of the Federal Prohibition Act committed in his presence and to take prisoners before United States commissioners for arraignment. He may also collect evidence in affidavit form and submit it to the United States attorney of the Southern District of New York for action by him, or if he can obtain sufficient affidavits showing a series of violations of the law upon any specified premises he can submit same to the district attorney of his county who can thereupon begin infraction proceedings in the state courts.

When I began this letter I did not intend to write a sermon, but there has been so much loose talk about prohibition and so much misinformation spread abroad that it seems to me about time somebody stated some actual facts.

Please understand that I am ready and willing to assist in any way in my power, without charge for my services.

Very respectfully,
F. G. TRAVER.

In answer to questions by a Freeman reporter, District Attorney Traver said that any municipality, by which he meant an incorporated town, village, city or county, had the power to raise funds by taxation for the enforcement of the Federal Prohibition Act or any other Federal law, but unless such appropriations were specifically made for such purpose, a public officer who attempted to expend county funds for rather evidence in Federal cases of any kind would be exceeding his authority and for money so expended could not and undoubtedly would be called personally to account.

These defendants are fine, upstanding, true Germans, facing judges with pure hearts," said Dr. Schramm. "They do not need to tremble with shaking knees and chattering teeth."

Associate counsel for the defense denied the defendants are trying to shift the blame for the "beer cellar punch" to others.

The prosecutor denied that the judge smiled while Hitler was testifying.

The situation is becoming tense. Dr. Schramm asked the court to expel a cartoonist who drew a picture ridiculing Ludendorff and Hitler.

There is a report that Dr. Von Kahr and others may be arrested as the result of impending testimony.

MISS MACDONALD WINS SYMPATHY OF ENGLAND

Premier's 20-Year-Old Daughter, Quiet and Demure, Becomes Downing Street Mistress.

The London newspapers make much of the new mistress of 10 Downing street, Miss Isabel MacDonald, the twenty-year-old daughter of the new prime minister.

The fact that a quiet, unassuming and home-loving girl has suddenly been thrust into this position owing to the loss of her mother appeals universally to human sympathy, and interviews and portraits of the young woman are featured widely today.

The pictures show a robust girl with a pleasant, smiling face, but rather demure. Miss MacDonald told interviewers that her unusual name is the Gaelic form of the English Isabel, Gaelic being the native tongue in the north of Scotland, her father's home.

She is a student at a domestic science college in London and recently attended her lectures as usual before going to the Downing street mansion at the invitation of Mrs. Baldwin, who received her and showed her about the premises.

"I have been studying laundry work, housewifery and cooking," Miss MacDonald said, "but I am not fond of housekeeping. I much prefer science and physics."

She explained that although she is to be mistress at No. 10 she would not need to look after the housekeeping, because her father had a housekeeper. She has studied domestic economy to qualify herself for social welfare work. Her other interests include golf, hockey and music. She does not like dancing and is not a great reader.

Turkey Puts Marriages on the Bargain Counter

In line with the policy introduced by Mustapha Kemal Pasha, municipal councils in Anatolia have decreed that the marriage ceremony shall be so cheapened that it will be within reach of the poorest peasant.

The husband is forbidden to give the bride more than two costumes or more than one set of furniture. Adornment of the bride with gold coins, decoration of carriages or giving of presents by relatives of the two parties are also forbidden.

Music is interdicted unless the drummer obtains a permit, which costs one Turkish pound. He in turn is not entitled to accept more than five Turkish pounds for playing two days and two nights. Only three vehicles may be sent to bring the bride, and the driver charging more than one pound will be imprisoned.

The measure, it is hoped, will aid the government in its professed policy of increasing the sadly depleted population of Turkey.

Aliens to Be Barred From Salmon Fishing

As the result of the recent agitation in which the American Legion played a prominent part and the fact that a similar law became effective in the state of Washington on the first of this month, a determined effort is to be made to enforce the Oregon statute which forbids aliens to fish for salmon in the Columbia river. Notices to that effect have been served on the packers by Carl D. Shoemaker, master fish warden.

The Oregon law has been in effect for several years, but its enforcement has been so slack that one official estimates fishing licenses were issued to more than two hundred aliens last year. The assertion is also made that some of these aliens have committed perjury in applying for licenses by making affidavits that they were citizens, while others have got by through inserting the words "first paper" before the word "citizen" in their affidavits.

Makes Aerial Survey of Ancient Chinese City

Following the example of investigators who recently added to their knowledge of Stonehenge by viewing the site from the air, Carl Bishop of the Smithsonian Institution has made an aerial survey of the remains of an ancient city located near the present town of I-Chow, sixty miles south of Peking.

The place, according to Bishop, was a site of considerable importance, antedating authentic history, which later became known as Yen, capital of the kingdom of that name, and which was burned by Chin Shiwang in 222 B. C.

There are thirty mounds traceable, which Bishop designates as burial places, while others of greater dimensions he believes to be sites of temples and public buildings.

The Champion Air-Sealed Vaults provide the most perfect burial protection the world has ever known—and the most convenient, too.

They are quickly available—ready for immediate use. They completely encase the casket in heavy-gauge Copper-Steel; and the simple act of placing the cover in position, automatically seals the contents against all possible entrance of water or any other destructive element.

Champion Copper-Steel Vaults are moderate in price—yet afford priceless protection.

FEDERAL ENFORCEMENT.

The battle between bootleggers and enforcement agents in Washington, which resulted in the accidental shooting and dangerous wounding of a passing United States Senator, adds interest to Attorney General Daugherty's report on the enforcement of Federal prohibition and the amount of work it has put upon the Federal courts. The report indicates that the Federal courts are pretty nearly swamped with cases of violation. Although 115,600 cases have been disposed of in four years, their number continues to swell alarmingly. In 1921, the first full fiscal year covered by the report, 29,000 cases were begun; in 1922, nearly 35,000; in 1923, no less than 49,900. While the number of convictions last year is nearly double that of 1921, the number of pending cases more than doubled.

As to deterrents, we read that "heavier penalties have been secured, and undoubtedly this is the reason for the flood of violations being checked. If they actually have been." That "if they actually have been" is eloquent of doubt, as is also Mr. Daugherty's further statement: "It may be that the maximum number of violations has already been reached." He would naturally hesitate to say more than "it may be" in a report with figures indicating a rapid increase during several years. It might be argued, however, that the great number of cases coming before the Federal courts is due in part to the policy of the enforcement agents, that is, if the Portland Oregonian is well informed, according to that newspaper, 50 cases of Scotch whiskey come into Portland every day and "not once a month is a large shipment stopped." The enforcement officers nabbing only small offenders in order to make "a grand record of fines collected." The newspaper quoted goes so far as to assert that there is no encouragement from Federal, State or police authorities to "net" the big bootlegger; "it is the number, not the kind of convictions, that count." If this is a true picture of the conditions and the policy outside as well as inside of Oregon, we need not wonder that the problem facing the authorities grows both in magnitude and complexity.

THE COOLIDGE PLAN.

One reason why the people read and listen to what President Coolidge has to say is because they can understand just what he means. It is not necessary to have one hand on a dictionary. He uses plain language and what he has on his mind is clearly imparted. His Lincoln Day speech was a wonder for clarity and it is probable that, due to the use of the radio, as many people heard it as any address ever delivered.

The President perhaps realized that he could select no better time to speak to farmers, and he stated that the resources of the country should come to the support of agriculture. He also declared that there is something radically wrong when agriculture is in its present state of depression. The President said that the high prices paid and the low prices received on the farm are directly due to an unsound method of taxation. It was apparent that he understood one of the farm problems in relation to taxes, for he said:

"Production has outrun the power of distribution and consumption. It is perfectly obvious that there is something radically wrong when agriculture is found in its present state of depression at a time when manufacturing, transportation and commerce are on the whole in a remarkable state of prosperity. The resources of the country, ought to come to the support of agriculture. The high prices paid and low prices received on the farm are directly due to our unsound method of taxation."

Referring to the Mellon tax proposal and his desire to have it adopted, President Coolidge said:

"The people must understand this is their fight. They alone can win it, unless they make their wishes known to the Congress without regard to party the bill will not pass."

A bill before the New Jersey legislature provides that no history shall be used in the public or private schools of that state which "ignores, omits" or misrepresents the events leading up to or connected with any war in which this country has been engaged. If a school history did not ignore or omit three-fourths of the historical material available, the children would grow up before they could turn the pages of the tomes with which the author of this bill would surround them.

As a result of the campaign instituted by the Society of American Dramatists, radio broadcasting concerns will no longer be able to appropriate at will and without compensation copyrighted plays and novels, which is as it should be. The right to broadcast is in the same class with the right to publish or to give dramatic representation.

TALKING ABOUT YOUR SYMPTOMS.

I have never been able to understand why people liked to talk about their ailments.

Where the credit comes in having a severe touch of indigestion, an attack of rheumatism, or an operation for appendicitis, is beyond me.

And yet we all seem to do it.

With the man who has always something wrong with him, we get a variety of ideas about all manner of ailments, and the ability or lack of ability of certain physicians.

With the man who is seldom ill, it is almost worse because an illness with him is a rare event. No one could have had exactly the same set of symptoms that he had. They just seemed to take a most unusual turn, and he is very anxious to tell you all about it.

For these we are a bit proud of it, we are going through it all.

And yet if you and I were to get right down to the root of things, and get the physician's candid opinion about the causation of our illness, perhaps we would not be so proud nor so apt to bore our friends by recounting our symptoms. Because if the truth were known in the majority of cases the cause of that illness was due to our own carelessness.

We have worked or played too long at a time, with no thought of the natural demands of the body in the way of food, sleep, and exercise.

If we were to tell our friends that the physician said that it was simply overeating, actually stuffing ourselves, that brought on our indigestion or constipation, would they advise or sympathize with us?

Not much.

They would say "It served you right."

Would we tell them that the real cause of the heart not behaving well during our recent illness was really due to our masterly inactivity—laziness?

I don't think we would.

Don't misunderstand me. We are perhaps attacked by diseases or conditions over which we have no control, and that no thought on our part could prevent. But in the majority of cases we are to blame ourselves.

So I've been thinking that if we were to remember this, perhaps we would spare our friends a lot of annoyance, and their sympathy could be expended on more worthy causes.

POULTRY

Green Feed for Layers

Needed During Winter

Green feed for hens in the winter will make them lay better, besides being one of the cheapest foods for the poultryman to use.

If possible, get some mangels beets. Cut them into pieces and put on a stick which is driven in the ground, or set up on the floor of the poultry house. This will give the chickens a chance to pick off the beet. One or two mangels, depending on the size, should be allowed every 25 birds. Mangels can be stored easily so that they will keep throughout the entire winter.

Sprouted oats also supply green food which is very satisfactory. The one thing to remember is not to let the oats sprout too long. Best results have been found with young sprouts that are green and tender. Care must be taken not to let it become moldy, as this poisons chickens. If mold persists it can be overcome by sprinkling with the sprouting water ten drops of formaldehyde. Formaldehyde is not injurious to the chickens in this quantity.

Soaked oats will help out if the trouble of sprouting is too great. Alfalfa leaves which have been dried and then covered with boiling water to "green" them, are also good and palatable.

The use of these succulent feeds will increase the egg production and will reduce the feeding costs.

Sour Skim Milk Given as Cause of High Production

Some time ago the Missouri College of Agriculture through the department of poultry husbandry started an experiment to determine the cause of the high production secured from laying hens that were given an abundance of sour skim milk. A study of the analysis of sour skim milk showed it to contain 90.77 per cent water, 0.70 per cent fat, 3.33 per cent milk sugar (lactose), 0.50 per cent lactic acid, 3.65 per cent protein and 0.70 per cent milk ash or salts. It was assumed that water alone was not the stimulating factor. The fat content seemed too low, and the distribution of carbohydrates did not point to milk sugar as a possible source of the problem. A comparison was made of rations containing lactic acid, milk salts, protein-free sour skim milk and sour skim milk. The results showed conclusively that that lactic acid in the same solution as in sour skim milk is valueless for egg production. Besides both milk salts and ash entirely failed to stimulate increased egg production. The results all seem to indicate that it is the proteins or milk curd that is the valuable part of sour skim milk. For two years the protein-free sour skim milk has not given as satisfactory production as the sour skim milk.

Guinea Quite Valuable Fowl to Have on Farm

So far, guinea occupy a back place in the poultry industry. Yet they are a valuable fowl.

When they are known they will come into their own with honor.

They are among the very best "bug rustlers" we have, living almost entirely on insects, doing very little damage to growing crops.

As for eating purposes, the guinea are claimed by some people to surpass the chicken in flavor and juiciness. Although having dark flesh, the young fowls are tender. The meat of the grown fowls is not as dry, when baked, as that of chicken or turkey.

The guinea hens are always known by their plaintive "potrack, potrack, potrack," while the rooster, when disturbed by a hawk or strange dog, lets forth such a shrill clatter that it puts one's nerves on edge.

Guinea begin laying the first of May and lay all through the summer, the eggs selling on the market for as much as hen eggs.

POULTRY NOTES

Do not feed the goslings until 48 hours old, but give them tender, finely cut grass and water.

Turkeys for breeding should be in good breeding condition; if fat the eggs are largely infertile.

Some geese will hatch two broods of goslings in a season if well managed. Goose eggs require 28 to 31 days to hatch.

The young are chicks until their sex can be distinguished or possibly even a little longer. A brood is a collection of chicks cared for by one hen or in a single brooder.

A stewing chicken weighs about three pounds and a roaster four pounds or more.

A constitutionally strong bird, one that passes through the molt quickly and easily, is a better layer than one that develops all kinds of ailments during this period.

Individual hens with pale-colored shanks, in such breeds as the Rock, Wyandottes, Reds and Leghorns, are considered better layers than those with bright-yellow shanks.

Origin of "Parlor Car."

It is said that Jenny Lind applied the term "Parlor Car" in a joking way to a car that was specially prepared for her comfort when she made her tour of the United States from 1830 to 1832.

GIRL SWIMMER DIES IN SHALLOW WATER

Car of Victim Found 300 Feet From River.

Brielle, N. J.—The body of Miss Emily Plume of this village was found recently by a searching party frozen in a foot of water in the marshes along the banks of the Manasquan river. Miss Plume, well known through eastern New Jersey as an expert swimmer and golfer, is believed to have left her automobile stalled in the muddy road 300 yards away and tried to walk to her home. She evidently lost her way, fell in the shallow water and, hampered by the heavy motor clothing she wore, was so chilled by the icy water that she could not pull herself to the bank.

Militia Officer Killed When He Runs Into Shot

Lawrence, Mass.—Lieut. Arthur D. Smith of Company B, One Hundred Eighty-second Infantry, Massachusetts National Guard, was killed when he was accidentally struck by a 12 pound shot, thrown by William Laughlin, a private in Company B.

Lieutenant Smith, who was twenty-two years old was running around the track in the state quarry drill shed, practicing for the American Legion track games to be held in January. As he turned a corner he saw the shot struck him in the part of the stomach. He died on the way to a hospital.

The police, who investigated, said that William Laughlin and a friend had been amusing themselves by throwing the 12-pound weight against the raised corner and that the shot, just thrown by Laughlin, struck Smith as he rounded the curve. They pronounced the case an accident and said that no action would be taken.

Rich Beggar Wanted to Sue City for Lost Time

Los Angeles, Cal.—Asserting that he lost money by being confined to the Pasadena jail over the holidays, Ernest Sancer, wealthy beggar of that city, contemplated bringing a damage suit against the city for a sum of $20,000. Sancer was arrested for begging in front of church doors. Rather than pay a fine of $300, he chose 300 days in jail.

The beggar is reported to have $9,000 deposited in Los Angeles banks and to own stock in a building. In a consultation with an attorney, Sancer decided to curtail his suit when the question of a retainer fee came up. The attorney wanted $50, and the beggar refused to pay the amount unless there was a guarantee to win the case.

Yeggs Too Busy Eating Candy to Find Jewels

Woodbury, N. J.—The burglars who entered the home of William Ross at 145 Thirty-fifth street while the family was out did not seem to be keen-witted. There were two boxes on a dresser in Mrs. Ross' room, one containing candy and the other $300 in cash and $700 worth of jewels.

The burglars opened the candy box and ate the candy, but did not molest the money and jewels. They got murky at finding nothing, so they tore down curtains, smashed several pieces of furniture and then left.

THE SHADOWS' DANCE

"Let's give a dance this evening," said the Shadows. "And let all the Shadows come."

So the Shadows all came to the dance. From everywhere they came and so many were they that they spread themselves all out over the streets—everywhere the Shadows seemed to be.

This dance was being given in a city.

When the leading Shadows had first suggested this party one timid little Shadow had said:

"But won't the people hurt us?"

"No, no no," the other Shadows said. "Shadows can't be hurt."

So the little Shadow went along too.

And the dance began.

It was a wonderful dance and the lights twinkled from the city streets and the Shadows danced here and there.

They flitted this way and that, they were here for a moment and then off again.

Oh, there was nothing they did not do!

The lights seemed to glow and dance with joy. Everywhere there were the

"Gay Little Shadows Are We."

Shadows dancing, merrily playing with one another on the gay and exciting city streets.

How exciting life could be, the little Shadow thought to itself as it lost its fear, in a city.

And life could be exciting in the country, too.

The little Shadow knew that. And there was fun to be had in rooms in houses, oh, such games as there were to be played.

And as the lights twinkled and the Shadows danced and played they sang this song:

Gay little Shadows are we,
Merry and bright as can be.
We're kind and a real treat,
We won't stop to rest.
For gay little Shadows are we.

Gay little Shadows are we,
To this we feel sure you'll agree.
You can't catch us, it's true,
But that wouldn't do.
For gay little Shadows are we.

Gay little Shadows are we,
We hop and we skip, one, two, three.
We run here and there,
We're most everywhere.
For gay little Shadows are we.

Gay little Shadows are we,
This one surely can see.
We like darkness and light
When the mixture's just right.
For gay little Shadows are we.

Gay little Shadows are we,
Merry and bright as can be.
We're kind and a real treat,
We won't stop to rest.
For gay little Shadows are we!

And the Shadows danced and danced until you would have thought they could have danced no more, and many people spoke of the way the Shadows were dancing that night, but they didn't hear the song of the Shadows.

The Fairy Queen heard it, though, and she asked the Breeze Brothers to send out the words of the song so that it could be heard by many, many friends of the dear, cheery, naughty, playful, merry little Shadows.

Knew All About That

The woman said she wanted a book to give her boy on his birthday—something useful and instructive. "Here's an excellent one on 'Self-help,'" said the clerk. "Self-help," exclaimed she. "He doesn't need any instruction in that line. You ought to see him at a party."

TASTY DISHES

A nice dish for dessert that is a little different is prepared with cream-puff shells. Chop a few dates and nuts and mix with whipped cream, roll in sugar and serve. If the puffs are made very small they are especially dainty and a pair will be needed for a serving.

Apple Charlotte.—Peel and core ten apples and mince them fine. Melt two tablespoonsful of butter in a saucepan, add one cupful of sugar, the grated rind of half a lemon and half a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Stew in this syrup until they are soft. Mash the apple and two tablespoonsful of apricot may, make and let it cool. Butter a large mold, cut thin strips of bread, dip them in melted butter and line the mold, letting them lap a little. For the bottom lay the strips of bread in the form of a star. Fill the mold with prepared apple, cover with a large sheet of buttered bread and bake in a water-bath oven forty minutes. Turn out on a plate and dust with powdered sugar.

Spanish Hash.—Chop three or four cold potatoes, a slice of onion and a green pepper. Season with salt, pepper and a dash of onion; bind together with beaten egg and bake in a buttered pan until brown. Serve with macaroni.

Apricot and Banana Cream.—Wash and soak one-quarter of a pound of dried apricots. While still hot sweeten to taste; these should be plenty of the syrup. Mash and rub through a sieve and when cold add three thin slices of banana sliced thin. Stir together lightly and serve hot with thick cream or whipped cream.

Sweet Potatoes, Southern Style.—Cook the potatoes in their skins until tender. Peel and cut them in thick slices and lay them into a greased baking dish, sprinkle with sugar, adding bits of butter to each layer. Bake thirty minutes in a slow oven; baste them occasionally, serve from the dish in which they are baked.

Edwards Tells More of Europe

On Wednesday night the H-Y held its regular meeting at the Y. M. C. A. After all the available food had been done away with the business meeting and speeches were held.

Longyear reported for the sleigh load committee. The sleighload will be held on March 5, after the H-Y meeting. Schroeder led the devotion and prayer. Professor Edwards then gave his third and last speech.

His subject was, "What Christian Religion can do to help the Situation in Europe." He said that it could do nothing. He then gave the reasons why it couldn't.

If one traveled in Europe as he did one would immediately see that the religion of Europe would change. The religion in Europe changes with the environment. Prof. Edwards judges that one-third of the population of Europe is Roman Catholic, one-third Greek orthodox and one-third Eastern orthodox. There is no variety like that which the average American is used to. The land of Europe is divided in sections and these sections are almost unanimously of one sect.

The one-third that are Protestant are dead. They have buildings and the like but they are not active. The morality in Europe is shocking. Women respectable before the war are degrading themselves to mere shells. They have to do this to keep their soul and body together. The church should teach the moral law and provide for the several unusual cases at the present in Europe. The Roman Catholic Church is active but apparently its activities are not doing much to improve conditions.

The one-third Eastern orthodox are a band of people, primitive in the thought of religion. They believe in all the simple good things of life but have not as yet reached a moral standard and so does not hope and try to preserve such in Europe. They believe that the head of the church does nothing wrong and therefore, he is their example.

The Christianity in the United States looks very different three or four thousand miles away. The point is Americans are Christians in a broad sense. They think that God is a kind of good natured father. He did not say that they don't take up collections to buy New Testaments for the Eskimos. Doing such will not help the European situation. The different societies all help. The Y. M. C. A. helps a little; all others help a little but if all the facilities combined and were multiplied by one thousand, it would not be enough. He had not, then, supplied a way to solve the situation and he didn't know whether it would be solved. Coming back to the primitive or being under one rule might solve it. Socialism might solve it, but there is not any one person or institution who can do it.

After Prof. Edwards' speech the regular H-Y games were held. The first game was between the Senecas and the Blackfoot. The latter easily won by a 31 to 10 score. Murphy, Longyear and Rose starred for the winners. Riskey did the best work for the Senecas.

Gipsying in a Cove.

I was a great solitary when I was young . . . I traveled . . . with a tilt cart, a tent, and a cooking stove, tramping all day beside the wagon, and at night, whenever it was possible, gipsying in a cove of the hills, or by the side of a wood. I believe I visited in this manner most of the wild and desolate regions both in England and Scotland. . . . It was a life in which I delighted; and I fully thought to have grown old upon the march, and at last died in the ditch. —Robert Louis Stevenson.

The Crutched Friars?

The name was given to the Trinitarians or Friars of the Holy Trinity, on account of the cross embroidered on their dress. Other authorities say that they received the name of Crutched, corrupted into "crutched" or "crutched" friars, because of the staff carried by them, the top of which was surmounted by a cross. The order was founded at Bologna about 1180, and first made its appearance in England in the Thirteenth century. The Crutched Friars had monasteries in London, Oxford and Kelgate.

What is Rosemary.

A genus of plants of the family Labiate. It is an erect evergreen shrub 4 to 8 feet high with linear leaves and pale bluish flowers, growing in sunny places, on rocks, old walls, etc., in the Mediterranean region. It is generally cultivated as an ornamental or aromatic shrub. A perennial oil, all of rosemary, obtained from the leaves, is frequently used as a perfume and as a principal ingredient in Hungary water. Spirit of rosemary, made by distilling rosemary with rectified spirit, is used to perfume lotions and liniments. Wild rosemary, hog rosemary and marsh rosemary occur from Labrador southward.

Twins Rare Among Indians.

It is a rare thing for twins to be found among Indians, and the discovery of two five-year-old girls in the Passamaquoddy tribe has caused intense interest among the tribesmen around Portland, Me., says the Detroit News. The father is William Senechal, noted athlete, and this is the first time that twins have come to the Passamaquoddy in their 150 years of settlement on the border between the United States and Canada. The twin girls have been carefully secluded for five years to avoid the influence of the "evil spirits."

Offers to Go to Jail in Aged Wife's Stead

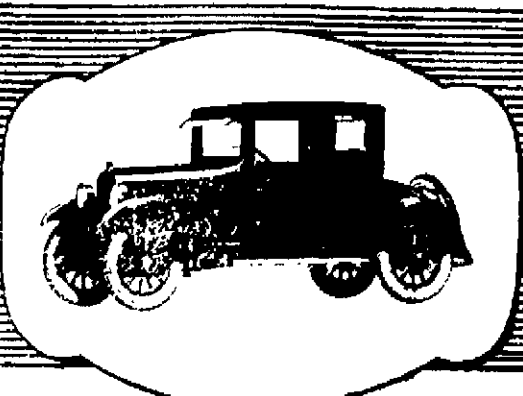

Rather than have his sixty-four-year-old wife serve a month in jail, Joseph Kirs, fifty-eight years old, of Springfield, Mass., volunteered to serve in her stead and his offer was accepted by Judge Hendy in District court recently. There is also a fine of $100 attached to the sentence, which, if not paid, will add three months to his term.

The Kirs, Amelia and Joseph, were arrested on January 7 in a liquor raid. Both had figured in the selling, so there was no difficulty in transferring the entire blame to the shoulders of the self-sacrificing husband.

Kiwanis Hears Telephone Don'ts

H. J. Carroll, manager of the lecture bureau of the New York Telephone Company, delivered to the Kiwanis Club Thursday the same lecture down to the last word "Success" - he had given the Rotary Club the day before, and which The Freeman printed in full Thursday. In addition and in between he told several stories new to most of the members which together with his unquestioned cleverness in making an entertaining monologue out of a lesson on how to use the telephone brought him genuine applause. Doubtless it also will result in employees of many organizations being told to avoid some of the errors and abuses he portrayed so vividly with the air of an ordinary desk telephone. He was introduced by A. L. Harder, local commercial manager of the company.

Judge Joseph M. Fowler, tanned and lit after spending the "first vacation" he had had in twenty years in the south, mostly in Florida, said he was ready to endorse all the good things that had been said about that section and wanted to go back there again some time.

Two new members, Edward M. Lester, electrical contractor and William Craig of the Schilling Furniture Company, were introduced, as was also Charles Lasher's guest, Charles F. Shepherd.

The attendance prize, given by Floyd Powell, went to Dr. Meinhardt, the younger.

Next Thursday the annual ten weeks' attendance contest begins in the state. Last year the local club came in second.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to serious complications.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist, Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

FASHION DECREES BACK PLACEMENT OF BROOCH

(By Eleanor Gunn)

It argues well for the prosperity of the country at large when diamond bracelets become too ordinary for rich women! Obviously all that glitters is not a diamond, but the popularity of near-diamond and genuine diamond bracelets has resulted in a reversion to other types, notably the plain gold link or heavy chain bracelet. Not one, but many are worn and are a rest to the eyes after gazing at sparkling arms night after night.

Bar pins have been replaced by bowknots and other types and if one has wearied of wearing them on the shoulder, there is a new point of vantage. A diamond pin centering at the back of a décolleté gown is not an unusual sight. It is always fastened so that no one cannot possibly labor under the illusion that its placement has anything whatsoever to do with fastening the gown. Gowns are seldom fastened now, even though some make a brave pretense at it by showing a row of buttons as evidence. This is purely circumstantial, however.

Women also wear diamond pins on their hips and of course in their hats, but the center of the back is the latest position. It subtly conveys an idea of a personal maid and at the same time evinces an utter disregard of the ultimate fate of the pin.

A year ago, Palm Beach was jingling merrily because of its dozens of jangling glass bracelets. They have broken to splinters long since, and now we find Russian crystal necklaces sustaining our interest in glassware. These are curiously shaped, the beads being oval, also three-sided and in their center is a brilliant or pale drop of color. These are among the effective and inexpensive ornaments permissible. (Copyright, 1924, Fairchild).

DASHEEN REPORTED GAINING IN FAVOR

Vegetable Contains More Food Than Potatoes.

It took the French Faculty of Medicine, the controller general of finance in France and the pope to convince the people of Europe in 1771 that the potato was good to eat and would sustain life instead of utterly destroying it, as so many feared. Now, as nearly everybody knows, the potato is not feared at all. This bit of history is added to a statement of the Department of Agriculture to encourage those engaged in promoting the dasheen industry.

The dasheen is a vegetable with food qualities similar to those of the potato, but because it is drier it contains about 50 per cent more actual food than an equal weight of potato. It has a nutty flavor and is so mealy that even the worst of cooks can serve it without sogliness.

According to the department, there are many growers of the dasheen in Florida and because the vegetable was introduced here by explorers of the department, the growers of the plant are getting all possible aid from the government.

The dasheen first appeared here about fifteen years ago, but instead of being hailed as a wonderful new crop plant it was jeered at, ridiculed, condemned and damned with faint praise. But neither the government nor the farmer engaged in raising it have become discouraged and the dasheen, it is confidently predicted, will before long come to be considered as an indispensable article and as a most tempting part of a meal no matter whether it appears baked, fried, in a salad, as chips a la Saratoga, or in any of many other forms.

The statement of the department says of the dasheen:

"Experimental work has proved the value of the dasheen and the possibility of producing it on a commercial scale. Farmers who recognized its high potential value since its introduction have kept on growing it, eating it and marketing it when they could, and the Oriental populations of our large cities kept on eating it when they could get it. Thus the high production and consumption of dasheens gradually increased until the equivalent of ten carloads found its way to northern markets each season.

"However, some of these forward-looking farmers, finding that they could grow dasheens more successfully than most other crops, decided the vegetable ought to be introduced to our people more generally. They consequently formed in Nassau county, Fla., a 'Dasheen Growers' association,' two of the principal objects of which were to market a more uniformly high-grade product and to keep this on the market steadily wherever a demand was found.

"With the co-operation of a system of local chain stores and other friendly interests in the nearby city of Jacksonville, this farmers' organization is meeting with considerable success in making the dasheen a familiar food product in that city. Housewives are learning how best to prepare it for their families and are forming the habit of providing it occasionally."

Needless Expense

A traveling man for an Atlanta house tells of an incident he observed in one of the towns of Georgia. He was seated in the waiting room when a typical negro of the backwoods type appeared at the ticket window and asked the agent for a ticket to Macon.

"Straight or return?" asked the agent.

"Straight or return?" repeated the negro.

"Yes," continued the agent, "a straight ticket will take you to Macon only, and a return ticket will bring you back here."

The negro understood at once. "Say," he shouted, "what do you think I want a return ticket for when I'm already here?"

Off to the Funeral
"Boss," said the dorky, "I'd lak to git off next Saturday fur the day." "What for?" inquired the employer. "Got to go to a funeral." "Whose funeral is it?" "My uncle's." "When did your uncle die?" "Lawd, boss, he ain't daid yet!" "Then how do you know his funeral is going to take place on Saturday?" "Cose dey's gwine to hang him on Friday!"—Stars and Stripes.

The Story Your Hands Reveal

FINGERPRINT experts know how much the hands can reveal about a person. But it doesn't take an expert to read the story so many hands tell—those of a housewife, for instance. If they are red, rough and coarse looking, an average person can tell that she thoughtlessly uses some common household soap which irritates and roughens the skin.

Intelligent housewives nowadays choose the kind of household soap they use as carefully as they do their toilet soap. And to get a soap for every household and laundry purpose as harmless to their hands as is the most exquisite toilet soap, the modern housewife insists upon Kirkman's.

THE reason is that Kirkman's Soap, being free from irritating lye, will not harm the skin or injure the most delicate fabrics. It is made of the purest and finest materials. It contains absolutely no adulterants such as starch, talc or water-glass, which have no cleansing value.

Kirkman's Soap users know, too, that it is a most thorough cleanser.

For the sake of your hands insist upon Kirkman's Soap.

YOUR HANDS WILL BE GRATEFUL

POLICE DEADSHOT KILLS PRISONER IN PISTOL DUEL

Alleged Wife Abuser Fires at Captor Who Was Taking Him to Jail.

New York.—Detective Lieutenant Eugene Dubelbeiss of West Hoboken started practice with a pistol in the Spanish war in Cuba and he has continued it through his years of service. He became one of the fastest men on the draw and one of the surest shots in the police departments of New Jersey, and his years of effort saved his life.

The lieutenant was sent with a warrant to arrest Otto Herring, forty, at 536 Elm street, West Hoboken, who was charged with abusing his wife. Mrs. Herring warned Dubelbeiss that her husband was armed and had threatened to shoot on sight any policeman who tried to arrest him. The lieutenant surprised him and had Herring's hands in the air before he could start anything.

Failed to See Revolver.

A search of Herring and of the house failed to reveal a revolver and Dubelbeiss took his prisoner to an automobile, believing the wife to have exaggerated her husband's dangerous tendencies. With Herring riding on the front seat with him the lieutenant started for the police station.

The automobile was turning the corner at Charles street and Bergentine avenue when Herring suddenly drew a revolver which he had concealed in his clothes. Dubelbeiss did not see the revolver until the first shot was fired. Herring fired again and missed. A third shot went through the lieutenant's collar but did not injure him.

As Dubelbeiss struck the ground Herring was aiming a fourth shot, but the lieutenant's gun came out of his holster and he fired. The first shot struck the prisoner in the head and killed him. Dubelbeiss fired a second time and the second bullet also found its mark.

Says Children of Today Will Live Much Longer

Fort Worth, Tex.—The children of today will live an average of 12 years longer than their grandparents, according to Dr. Allan Craig of Chicago, associate director of the American College of Surgeons, who attended a meeting here recently of the Texas-Oklahoma-New Mexico section of the American College of Surgeons.

Quoting figures to show the modern tendency toward longevity, Doctor Craig said that "if we had the same death rate today we had in 1880, there would have been 750,000 more deaths in the United States than there were." On any given day there are 3,000,000 sick persons in the United States, he said, adding that one-third of this affliction is due to preventable diseases.

"Every man, woman and child should submit to a thorough physical examination at least once a year," he declared. "Only in this way can we determine where our weak spots are."

Device Aids "Sub" Pilot to See While Submerged

Rome.—According to a dispatch from Civitavecchia, Professor Guglielmo is said to have made a discovery which is destined to revolutionize the physical laws hitherto believed to prevail with respect to the refraction of light through an elastic body, such as water.

The professor asserts that the discovery, which resulted from long research and experiments, will enable the pilots of submarines to see through the water even at great depths.

Not Even "Thanks"

Mr. Skirtsby—"No use trying. You can't get the last word with a woman." Mr. Longsuffer—"I did once. It was in a crowded street car. I said, 'Take my seat, madam,' and she dropped into it without a word."

WORKER FALLS INTO POWER PLANT FLUE

Burned Beyond Recognition
by 1,000-Degree Heat.

New York.—Burned almost beyond recognition, the body of Fernando Mendes, a coal passer, who disappeared was found in a pit at the foot of a flue in the power house of the Pennsylvania railroad, Long Island City.

When Mendes failed to return to his home at No. 15 Oak street, Manhattan, his brother, Gustavo, sought him at the plant. His time card showed he had not checked out.

Martin Walzer, a water tender, found a small door leading into a flue on the third floor was open. The flues lead to the smokestacks. Mendes apparently had entered the door and the strong draft had blown him from a ledge.

His body was buried in soot in the flue behind the boilers.

The temperature in the flue was about 1,000 degrees, but the soot prevented the body from being cremated.

The power house officials lessened the heat and two firemen of Rescue Squad No. 2, Manhattan, got the body. They wore fireproof suits and gas masks and had ropes tied around their waists.

Dice-Playing Held Legal if There Is No "Kitty"

White Plains, N. Y.—Commissioner of Public Safety Thomas U. Underhill and his detectives, who have been trying to close up "speakeasies" and gambling resorts, received a setback in a decision by City Judge Stephen Holden.

The judge dismissed the case of four men charged with playing craps, and in doing so upheld the contention of former Judge Mortimore C. O'Brien, who contended at the trial that unless there is a "kitty" or someone is getting a "cut" out of the game, playing is not against the law unless it be in a public street or public place within the meaning of the law.

According to Attorney O'Brien, card playing in which no one profits but the winning player is legal, but anyone other than a player receiving financial gain from the game becomes a common gambler.

Slayer Shoots Victim Through Wall in Hotel

Central City, Ky.—Police are seeking, as the slayer of Luther Brown, a person who had calculated carefully and waited until certain of the position of the victim's head before firing a bullet through the wall of a hotel here in line with the bed in the room in which Brown was sleeping.

Brown was found fatally wounded when his groans attracted investigators to his room. He died without having regained consciousness. Officers said that when an effort was made to ascertain the identity of the occupant of the room from which the bullet was fired it was found that the names on the hotel register had been almost completely erased during an absence of the clerk.

Women in Fatal Duel Over Pile of Wood

Syracuse.—Following an argument over ownership of wood fuel in a tenement house in which they resided, Mrs. Lydia Bucktooth, fifty, and Mrs. Jackson, forty-six, recently engaged in what proved to be a battle to death for the latter.

Mrs. Jackson died of a fractured skull and Mrs. Bucktooth is under arrest, charged by Mrs. Cora Homer, daughter of the dead woman, with having inflicted the fatal injury by a blow with a flashlight.

Landlord Ousts Tenant Who Owned Five Cats

New York.—Judge David Gorinkle in the Yonkers city court decided that five cats in a three-room flat constitute a nuisance and granted an order of eviction against Mrs. Mary Sheehy from 460 Lewis street. The landlord, Paul Brennan, complained that the cats raced through the building day and night.

Watches Own Operation

Meriden, Conn.—Mrs. Henry Lange, seventy-five, of this city, who was discharged as cured from the Meriden hospital, recently watched surgeons remove half of her stomach and cut out a large growth while she was under the influence of local anesthetics only. The operation took two hours, during which Mrs. Lange conversed with the surgeons.

Ranges Feed Stock

Washington.—The ranges of the national forests supported around 2,000,000 head of cattle and 7,000,000 head of sheep, not counting calves and lambs, during the current year, says the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture.

Public Spends Huge Sum for Bogus Stock

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Luster At Once.

Common garden sage-brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wych's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss. While gray, faded hair is not singular, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wych's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and lustrant and you appear years younger.

NAME DYING CITY FOR DEAD CHIEF

Despite Glorious Past, Petrograd Appears to Be Drifting to Oblivion.

In changing the name of Petrograd to Leningrad the Soviet government has named a dying city after a dead man. Moscow, like Vienna, Riga and Trieste, after passing under the shadow of poverty thrown by war devastation, is once more on the path to prosperity, but the city of the czars, despite its glorious past, appears to be drifting toward oblivion.

"Old St. Petersburg by any name will be known as a city which, like Tell-Amonia, the Citadel of Tint-Amon's father-in-law, was dedicated to a great ideal," a bulletin from the National Geographic society says. "St. Petersburg was the lever used by Peter the Great to lift Russia out of her stony Asiatic habits into the light of European culture and commerce."

Loss of Chief Right to Live. "Russia's window to Europe" was the significant designation of St. Petersburg before the war and revolution. Riga and Warsaw now are both the doors and windows of Russia when she chooses to use them, and with the transfer of government to the more recently located city of Moscow, Leningrad has lost its chief reason for being much more than a railway junction. Before the war it had a population of 2,000,000. Now it has fewer than one-third that number.

Except for the main avenues, Leningrad's streets are deserted; grass grows between the cobblestones, street cars are running half empty when they do run, most of the shops and gay restaurants are closed. The harbor holds no fleets even when the ice is out in April. Leningrad offers a melancholy sight to the tourist. Stately mansions of royalty are tumbling in. Many were built on piles like houses in Venice or Amsterdam, and the foundations are collapsing. Basements are filled with the Neva's overflow and roofs and window frames have been torn out long ago to supply fuel for a desperate citizenry. Famous parks are wildernesses. Gaunt factories are empty and still.

"How different when the brilliant Catherine ruled 100 years ago! Some called her Catherine the Great; many called her Catherine the Bad. Good or bad, with an empire as large as the Roman empire from which to exact wealth, she set a pace for extravagance, contempt for human life and these living which Nero himself might be pushed to equal. She built palaces in rapid succession for her favorites. One of them, Orloff, returned the favor by strangling her husband, that Catherine might satisfy her ambition to be sovereign of all Russia from the Atlantic to the Pacific. For Potemkin she built the Taurida palace at a cost of millions, estimated in dollars, and hundreds of lives.

"Potemkin, in his gratitude, gave an entertainment typical of lavish royal St. Petersburg. For illumination 400,000 was spent. On one evening 140,000 lamps and 20,000 wax candles were burning. Between the palace and the river the whole space was occupied by booths, swings and shops, where clothes, boots, caps and gawags were distributed gratis. Three thousand guests were invited and all attended in costume. White dresses of members of the special ballet were decorated with diamonds. Invisible music boxes played selections of noted composers. When they were silent three hundred musicians and singers played and sang for the merry-makers. Potemkin himself had a crown for the occasion so heavy with jewels he was compelled to give it to his adjutant to carry."

Suffered With Sorbs. "This former capital of Russia has always had the reputation of being disease-ridden. Within the last year the death rate has fallen lower than the usual figure, which hovers about 85 per thousand. The reason offered, however, is that the weak have all died off and only the strong remain. This is what comes of a czar's whim. For Peter the Great insisted that his 'window to Europe' rise on the swamp where the Neva enters a shallow bay of the Gulf of Finland. There it stands, now circling round about with gray granite quays, but the Neva still gets out of hand when a stiff southwest wind backs up water in the bay. Royalty suffered along with serfs. Peter died from fever caused by his rescue of a peasant woman and child who had fallen through the ice. The average reign of seven monarchs in the first forty years after the founding of the city was less than six years.

"Peter the Great had a 'marine complex.' Russians traditionally avoid the ocean. But not Peter. He loved the sea from boyhood when he satisfied his longing by making boats. His great desire was that Russia should become a seafaring nation and that his capital would one day outshine Venice and Amsterdam. So profound was his veneration of the Dutch that he called his city Sankt Petersburg. This became St. Petersburg, which gave way at the opening of the World war to Petrograd, because the older name was too German. Leningrad, like Venice and Amsterdam, has numerous canals, but unlike these two cities, it can never be a great port. The river and bay, for one thing, are frozen solid six months of the year. The hinterland on which Leningrad draws is a forest district. Riga is the logical western port for the great producing sections of Russia.

Reason for Buying Gramophones.

"I see you have bought a gramophone. I thought you couldn't stand the sound of the things!" "I can't. But my mother-in-law is staying with us, and she hates them more than I do."—Korsaren (Christians).

WOMEN MORE OPTIMISTIC IN WAY OF REMARRIAGE

Unusual Facts Revealed in Study of Figures in Office of Vancouver Auditor.

Women are more optimistic in the matter of remarriage after divorce than men, as shown by the marriage records on file in the Auditor's office at Vancouver, Wash. Out of more than 2,000 marriages performed here during last year, 395 of the brides had been divorced, compared with 233 divorced bridegrooms. Many of the women had been divorced twice and a few had been through the divorce court three times.

Only a few men had been divorced twice. Both parties in 130 marriages had been divorced. Minor brides were also more in evidence than minor bridegrooms. Brides sixteen years old were numerous with a few only fifteen, the minimum age at which a girl can obtain a marriage license in Washington, even with the consent of parent or guardian. The youngest bridegroom to be licensed was seventeen, but there is no minimum age limit on boys in this state.

Nine couples of mixed races were granted licenses and were married by Justice of the Peace Wilson of Minnehaha, as Vancouver ministers and officials refuse to marry mixed couples, although the auditor must grant a license if there is no other obstacle to the marriage.

Less than 10 per cent of the licenses were issued to residents of Clark county. Seventy-five per cent were issued to couples from Oregon, 60 per cent giving Portland as their home. Idaho was third in the number of couples coming to Vancouver for marriage licenses and nearly every state in the Union was represented during the year.

Filipinos to Get Bibles in Their Native Tongues

The earthquake and fire in Japan last September were the cause of bringing to Manila the largest individual typesetting and printing order ever undertaken in the Philippine Islands. The job is that of putting into type the Bible in seven Philippine dialects for the American Bible society.

Prior to the earthquake, the printing for the American Bible society in the Philippines was done in Japan, but the plant at Tokyo was destroyed. The contract for the typesetting requires about 24,000,000 ems.

The work will be done on a single linotype, which will be operated 16 hours a day by two men working eight hours a day each. They will be busy for the next year and nine months. More than 21,000 Bibles are included in the first order.

The seven Philippine dialects are Ilocano, Pangasinan, Pampangan, Tagalog, Bicol, Maranan and Cebuano.

22,000,000 Pupils in U. S. Schools in 1923

More than 22,000,000 children were enrolled in the public schools of the United States last year. For the whole country, urban and rural, the schools were open an average of about eight months. Nearly 700,000 teachers were employed and this was a sufficient number to instruct every child enrolled every school day of the eight months the schools were in session, according to the United States bureau of education at Washington. By allowing their children to miss school one-quarter of the time, parents caused the waste of one-quarter of the money paid to run the schools. The total cost last year in all the states combined was just about $1,000,000,000. Irregular attendance caused the waste of one-quarter of this immense sum. In plain figures, a quarter of a billion looks like this: $250,000,000. The people who paid the taxes robbed themselves of this amount and at the same time deprived their own children of an average of two months' schooling.

High Price Is Asked for Crocodile Skin

Ten francs an inch is the price now being asked in Paris for the fine tan crocodile skin so fashionable for women's golf and walking shoes. As for the much-favored antelope hide, it is fast becoming priceless.

Fortunately the feminine shoe favored by fashion's latest decree does not require much leather. It is little more than a tawny and heel piece joined together by one or more thin strips. It's an ill wind that blows nobody some good, and the shoe dealers do not hide the fact that leather is rising with the dollar, with the pleasing result of filling their establishments with farsighted folk who are anxious to stock up before a rise.

Guests in Germany Bring Own Victuals

"Bring your own refreshment" parties, popular in Russia during the famine, have become quite the fad among the German middle classes, who do not feel able to serve food and drink whenever friends have been invited to their homes for an evening of entertainment. The housewives adopted the practice of requesting guests to bring their own sandwiches when food became an expensive some time ago, and assert the Russian system has worked splendidly, that everyone has a good time and that if a guest does not get enough to eat, it is his own fault.

Don't Climb for Fun.

The Japanese do not climb mountains for the fun of the thing. When you find a Japanese making the ascent of Fuji, the sacred mountain, he is probably a pilgrim performing a pious duty, according to W. Weston, in the Geographical Magazine.

Mary Succeeds on Main Street

By LAURA MILLER

THE OLD SOUTH YIELDS TO THE NEW WOMAN

A North Carolina newspaper recently ran a picture that any society editor would cringe. The well-to-do, the shapely, the charming, the profile was accompanied by mention of a "member of an old and prominent family of Carver county." It was a story of an island of femininity entirely surrounded by men. But the men had sat about a directors' table and welcomed Bertha Hellen as the newest officer of the Raleigh Bank and Trust company, the first woman assistant cashier in Raleigh.

Southern Main Street men please take to heart her words to other business girls.

"No one of you can appreciate my position unless you have been a girl in the South, where the woman is still having a struggle to gain her position in the business world. My home town cashier told me he had no question as to my ability. I could never be an officer in his bank merely because I was a woman. From that day I worked to become an officer in a larger bank than his."

Young Bertha Hellen, after she had got her foot on the ladder of success, had to face the one hardest type of opposition. "I worked for eight years in the little bank in my home town," she says. "I never had more than ten days time off during a year. Sometimes I worked two years without vacation. I took as much interest in that bank as if I had a big salary, or the presidency. In the ninth year I asked to be made assistant cashier."

"I don't think a woman can hold that kind of position," the cashier told me. That ended the matter—for him—but not for me.

"The next year I was paying teller in a large bank in Wilson, at doubled salary. Seventeen months later I promoted myself to a Raleigh bank."

Save for the petty vision of that first cashier and others like him, Bertha Hellen finds many big things on Main Street. "The average young girl's character grows better, I feel, when she can have the influence of home life. She has a chance to know people better. My experience is that she can have more social life along with her work than the strange girl in a strange city."

"If one aspires to big things, it looks sometimes as if it is necessary to leave the small town. But we ourselves may be bigger in a small town. Even if we do not have a big-paying position, our lives may count for more in the little home church and community."

Should Avoid Lying Trade.

He who has not a good memory should never take upon him the trade of lying.—Montaigne

Hanford Rogers In New Trouble

Talented Greene County Youth, Paroled From Dannemora by Governor Smith, Is Held For Two Burglaries Since.

Hanford Rogers, 21 years old, formerly of Jewett, Greene county, who was paroled from the Clinton State prison at Dannemora on December 19, 1923, is again in trouble, having not only violated his parole but committed several more crimes. Rogers who is a well educated young man, an athlete and a wrestler of no mean ability was sent to Dannemora prison from Albany county in 1921 on a forgery, second degree charge. While at Dannemora he taught the fifth grade in the prison school. He was paroled from the prison by Governor Smith and on the night of February 1, 1924, burglarized the store of Frank Heller at Hunter. He broke in a plate glass window and stole two overcoats one of which he sold to a man in Fleischmanns and the other one he kept for his own use.

On February 6 he burglarized the store of William Case at Conesville, Schoharie county, and took five pairs of trousers, one pair of rubber clothes, five bags of flour, 200 pounds of sugar and a bag of oyster shells.

Sergeant James Cunningham of Woodstock, Sergeant Joseph Scanlon of Grand Gorge, and Sergeant John Fitzgerald of Prattsville, were assigned to the case and after an investigation finally succeeded in locating all of the stolen property. During the investigation the State Troopers also received a self-confession from Rogers. He was placed under arrest Wednesday under a warrant for burglary, third degree, at Hunter, Greene county, for the burglary of February 1. He waived examination and was held to await the action of the grand jury. The overcoats were turned over to District Attorney Coffin of Greene county.

District Attorney Baker of Schoharie county will have a burglary charge on the evidence of the investigation and arrest and also it is understood was indicted by the grand jury of Schoharie county some time ago on a charge of grand larceny.

Rogers was taken to Catskill Wednesday where he was lodged in the Greene county jail to await the action of the grand jury.

A quantity of the stuff taken from the Case store had been hidden in the woods by Rogers. When the State Troopers had received the confession from Rogers he led them up the mountain and into the woods where he had hidden the stuff. Since the goods had been hidden a heavy snow had fallen but so well had Rogers marked the spot that he went directly to the spot and dug the goods from the snow.

A GRANDSON ON SUNDAY; GRANDDAUGHTER MONDAY

Frank J. Potter, of Ellenville, president of the Ulster County Agricultural Society, did some great thinking early last week. On Sunday he learned that he was a grandfather, a son Frank J. Jr., being born to Mr. and Mrs. Allen D. Potter, of Ellenville. The next day he learned that he was once more grand-dad, this time to a girl born to Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Potter, of East Orange, N. J. Not having any more married children to send in further returns, and after the possibility of any twins had passed, Mr. Potter came back to earth sufficiently to remark that this was a swift moving age.

SEASONAL COMPLAINTS OF UNCLEANED SIDEWALKS

Each winter The Freeman receives letters asking why the city's regulations requiring sidewalks to be kept clean are not enforced, their number varying with the amount of snowfall. Most of them are anonymous and name a number of properties in front of which there has been no shoveling of walks or gutters, and pointing out that policemen have been passing by all winter. The Freeman does not publish anonymous letters but it is known to almost everyone that these conditions exist almost anywhere off the main thoroughfares, some of the most flagrant violators being those who own vacant land in thickly built up neighborhoods. They are prosperous enough to be able to hold the land as an investment, but too poor to have the sidewalks cleaned, so these places remain, unsightly and dangerous spots in tidy and self-respecting neighborhoods. Their owners generally live elsewhere. The Freeman does not know why the regulations are not enforced.

Our Growing Population.

High Forms of Life May Exist on Planet

tenus in the evening firmament coincides in point of time with a new declaration of belief by astronomers that the nebulous cloud appearing in the constellation Sagittarius is another universe beyond our own. It revivifies interest in the time-worn discussion of the possibility that high forms of life exist on other planets. Not long ago

Harvard astronomer, Dr. Harlow Shapley, had expressed the opinion that Venus might be "inhabited"; wheregraphical disclosures with reference to the tiny cloud speck in Sagittarius which has been catalogued as N. G. C. 2222, persuade scientists that speculation on need not be confined to the relatively limited field of our own solar system. Worlds beyond worlds, universes beyond universes, beckon the investigator on.

It is interesting to compare the new views of Shapley and others with those of other scientists like Alfred Russel Wallace, who in his "Man's negative process of exclusion not only the unity of the vast stellar sysfor which we see around us but also for the non-existence of life elsewhere in the universe. Shapley and Walther agree in the main development of the protoplasm. Scientists generally have been inclined to assume a protoplasm answering to the mundane conditions, though some of the Shapley school would contend that the animal man may not be duplicated in other systems. Scientific opinion, too, holds tenaciously to the theory that matter is uniformly distributed in the universe.

The conditions necessary to life on a planet, as Shapley enumerates them, are that its sun must be essentially constant in brightness, that distance from the sun must fall within certain limits, that its orbit must not be too elliptical lest fatal variations occur.

that mass must be neither too small to attract and hold atmosphere nor so large as to create excessively violent unstable conditions, conditions that need neurological conditions, that rotation must differ from revolution, that there shall be a fairly high axis of rotation, and that there shall be the definite chemical constituency of air, land and water which is assumed to be necessary to the maintenance of life.—Portland Oregonian.

Misquoted Quotations

It is surprising how many "familiar quotations" are recited wrongly.

Many people make a hash of a phrase from Gray's Elegy. They say, "Innate from the maddening crowd," instead of "madding," the word the poet intended and used. Similarly they say that some one is seeking "fresh fields and pastures new," whereas Milton wrote "fresh woods."

It is an insult to these heroes to say hen Greek meets Greek then comes tug of war." The quotation says, hen Greek joins Greek"—that is to say, when they stood shoulder to shoulder they were almost impossible to overcome.—Columbia.

Guessed Wrong

"What do you mean by cheating me out of this?" cried the angry customer. "I said this chain would last a lifetime, and here's all the plating worn off in a month."

"Mine friend," replied the little Jew jeweller, "I said that chain would last you a lifetime because when you first you look so ill I didn't think you would live so long out."

Got Them Mixed

It came to the turn of a very timid housemaid to repeat the chosen text, which was: "I am fearfully and wonderfully made."
In her nervousness the poor girl started out: "I am a fearful and wonderful moid!"

Kind-Hearted Bonehead.
bonehead who is kind-hearted may good company, but he has to be amely kind-hearted—and so do you.

Federals Take Puerto Mexico

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Mexico City, Feb. 29.—Puerto Mexico, gulf terminus of the Isthmus Tehuantepec railway and the largest oil exporting port in Mexico, is again held by Federals.

The rebel garrison fled Wednesday.

Rebel forces operating in the Isthmus of Tehuantepec and the northern part of the state of Vera Cruz are reported to be trying to force General Guadalupe Sanchez's army at Jalapa, which now numbers 1,000.

General Eugenio Martinez, liberator of Vera Cruz, commanding 5,000 Federals, will give battle to the rebels at Jalapa.

The Federal offensive in the direction of Jalapa is being hindered by rebels burning bridges, dynamiting viaducts and tearing up railroads after their retreat.

Weeks Wants 3 Year Enlistment

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Feb. 29.—Secretary of War Weeks is at loggerheads with Congress over the length of the enlistment period in the army, it was learned here today.

Supported by an opinion of the judge advocate general of the army, Weeks insists that recruits should not be accepted for less than three years, while members of the House military affairs committee believe that the enlistment period should be one year so that the increased turnover would afford military training to a larger number of men.

The judge advocate general bases his legal opinion on a provision in the national defense act, and in view of the disagreement that has arisen, Weeks has asked for a review of this opinion.

FEDERATED P. T. A. PLANS TO GIVE ENTERTAINMENT

The February meeting of the Federated Council of Parent-Teacher Associations was held Wednesday afternoon, February 27, at the high school, schools No. 2, 5 and 6 being represented. Much interest was displayed throughout the meeting. Principal Van Ingen of the high school expressed, through the secretary, his great satisfaction and appreciation of the fact that the parents of the incoming freshmen had responded so splendidly to his invitation to visit the school and meet the teachers. The council is expecting to give an entertainment in the near future and ways and means pertaining to this were discussed and committees appointed. The meeting then adjourned.

Piety and Puritans

Piety is indifferent whether she enters at the eye or at the ear. There is none of the senses at which she does not knock one day or other. The Puritans forgot this, and thrust beauty out of the meeting house and slammed the door in her face.—James Russell Lowell.

Blast Victims Still Living

Michael Zolowich and George Fischer, the two men who were seriously injured in the blast in the quarry of the Acme Cement Company Saturday afternoon in which David Hinkley of this city, lost his life, are still living at the Benedictine Hospital.

Zolowich, known as "Big Mike", underwent an operation for the removal of a bone pressing on the brain which was performed by Drs. O'Meara, Cranston and Gifford, and his condition is said to be favorable. Fischer's condition is also reported as being as good as could be expected.

Care of Aluminum

One of the Swiss electric tramway companies has built cars of aluminum, says the New York Herald. One reason for using this metal is that the weight of the car is much lessened and another point is that the painting of the car lasts much longer. It was found that cars built with iron plates soon showed rusting and the paint suffered much from this. In Zurich, where the method is being tried, this is an important point, as the cars are painted in a light color. In the first place the metal was used for the roofs of the cars, and the result was so satisfactory by reason of the absence of rust that it was decided to go further and to employ it for the body covering of the car and part of the flooring. A metal known as duraluminum is used and it has a small amount of copper used so as to make it harder.

Temperatures of Ocean Water

When the Gulf stream and the iceberg laden Labrador current meet at the southern edge of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland extreme differences in the temperature of the sea water are often observed over short distances. The blue water of the Gulf stream can sometimes be seen to be separated by a sharp line of division from the dark and icy water from the north. This dividing line is what is known as the "cold wall." While a ice patrol duty last spring, a United States coast guard cutter stopped at a position directly across the "cold wall." The temperature of the water at the bow was found to be 34 degrees, while that at the stern was 57 degrees.

LARGE AUDIENCE LISTENED TO RIESER PUPILS' SINGING

A large audience gathered at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Thursday evening to listen to a song recital by pupils of Mrs. William H. Rieser, given for the benefit of the building fund of the Catholic Daughters of America. The hall was handsomely decorated and presented a beautiful appearance.

The singers who participated were the Misses Caroline Christians, Lillian Kaplan, Margaret Webster, Marion Byrne, Ruth Byrne Anna Cushner and Mildred Fitch. They sang their respective numbers so splendidly that every one of them is entitled to great credit. The delivery of the songs rendered reflected the painstaking care given by their gifted teacher in preparing their individual selections. The young ladies have beautiful voices and are on the road to high perfection. All were heartily applauded. Miss Rita Milens, a pupil of Prof. Rieser played Chamade's "Mollater" with fine finish and Jacob Mollot contributed a cello solo, Godard's "Recesso" in masterly style. He was assisted at the piano by Prof. Rieser. Dancing was enjoyed till a late hour and delicious refreshments were served.

Last League Game Tonight

Paterson Plays Kingston in Final Home Court League Game—Two Preliminary Games Will be Staged.

This evening at the local armory court the last league basketball game here for the season will be staged between the Morgenwek squad and the Paterson outfit. Paterson is tied for first place in league standing. The Brooklyn quintet, winners of the first half race, are on an even footing with Paterson.

The Paterson combination have been playing remarkable basketball in the past few weeks, being handicapped by the absence of Nick Harvey and Benny Borgman from the game due to injuries. It is expected that one of these players may be in the line-up here tonight.

Kingston is out of the running honors. The following is the standings:
W. L. Pct.
Paterson ..... 10 6 .625
Brooklyn ..... 10 6 .625
Trenton ..... 7 8 .466
Kingston ..... 8 10 .444
Yonkers ..... 6 8 .429
Greenpoint ..... 6 9 .400

There will be two preliminary games at the court tonight. The local Battery team will engage in a contest and the Kingston High School quintet will play the St. Stephen's seconds. The usual dancing will follow the game.

Two Auto Collided.
